I havebelieved from my earliest recollection that woman was the equal of maninmany attributes of character and his superior in some. In fact, I believein the equality of the sexes, in the principles of Christianity asapplied to humanity and exemplified in the teaching and practice of thegolden rule, in the Declaration of Independence as framed by the immortalJefferson wherein he declares that all men are created equal andendowedby their Creator with certain inalienable rights among which are life,liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. I doubt not but these fundamentalprinciples are accepted by the great majority of intelligentAmericans.Still there are many who doubt the propriety of woman entering theprofessions while yielding consent to the argument that she hasthe rightto do so--the right to earn her livelihood in any honest avocation inwhich the God of nature may have endowed her with abilities to pursue.Who, oh man, shall be the Judge as to the propriety? Thanks to anenlightened public conscience and the steady progressive spirit oftheage, the high walls of prejudice, superstition and ignorance have beenbroken in many places, if not entirely leveled, and today we can point tomany illustrious examples wherein our noble profession has beenhonoredand elevated, a community benefitted and blessed, and many a house madehappy by the faithful intelligent demonstrations of a woman physicianwhose efforts for the amelioration of the sufferings of othershave wonfor her imperishable tablets in the temple of humanity. To those whodoubt the propriety of women entering the professions, I would remindthem that women have exercised the highest civil powers in all ages ofthe world, from Zenobia of Palmyra to Victoria of England, and withoutdetracting from their graces as women or their virtues as mothers. Thatwomen have created public sentiment before which legislatures have beatand courts have bowedâ€“God grant that the day may soon arrivewhen weshall not only accord them the right of equal pay for equal work in anyand all pursuits to which they may aspire and in which they may provethemselves equipped, but also when our enlightened nation shall grantthem the recognition of their capacity for full citizenship.n nBIOGRAPHY: It is the belief of many wise men of our times that there is acrisis at hand in the affairs of government. That in the great gulfstream of humanity which flows from foreign shores with increasing andrising flood, the integrity our nation is at hazard, and unrestrictedimmigration is the mother of public demoralization, socialism, andanarchy. The only cure is restricted immigration and universal suffragelimited only by an educational qualification. I believe the cure will bemore permanent than the one effected by the Erie physician of whom myfriend Sen. Mclereary relates that he had acquired quite a reputation inthe treatment of stuttering. One morning, a patient entered his officeand enquired, "Can you cure stuttering?" "Yes sir"--just then a young manin the office desirous of sharing the doctors skill exclaimed, "He curedme!"n nBIOGRAPHY: I would advise the lady practitioner, should there be anypresent and unmarried, that before she enters upon the sea of matrimonyshe ponders wellâ€“and not subject herself to criticisms as did the youngmedical student of whom I have heardâ€“who had fallen in love with a fineyoung woman of prominent and wealthy parents. The girl was willing, butthe father objected because of the young manâ€™s poverty. In his distress,he applied to his _____, a wise and benevolent old gentleman, as allold doctors are. He, determined to help him, said to him, "I will giveyou $25,000 for your right leg." The young man refused. A few days later,the doctor made it his business to see the father of the young lady, andin a friendly chat, the father stated his objection to the young man onaccount of his poverty. "What, why I heard him refuse $25,000 for a pieceof property the other day, and I know he has other pieces equally asfine.n nBIOGRAPHY: Joseph Baltzell Showalter, M.D., (1851-1932), from handwrittennotes on Pennsylvania Senate stationery, evidently made for a speech c.1889-1892, during his term in the Pennsylvania Senate.
